Speakers can be requested to talk about issues such as grief, health care expectations and advance care planning, especially for those with chronic illness. Published books for health care professionals and the general public are available. Excerpts from both can be read on-line at web site. One goal is to improve public policy so that people with serious, chronic illness are able to find the health care they need. Suggests reading Handbook for Mortals which contains how to information on preparing for death.
