The Adult Mental Health Support program operated by Family Transitions is called Adult Mental Health Skill Building. This program offers individualized counseling and life skills training to adults 18 or older who, due to mental illness, would otherwise have trouble maintaining community stability and independence.

The program provides individualized counseling and similar skills training to adults 18 or older who, due to mental illness, would otherwise have trouble maintaining community stability and independence. Some major areas of focus include daily living skills training, accessing community resources, health and safety, financial management, and social support. Mental Health Support services are individualized, client-centered, and facilitated in the client's home and community.

Intensive in-home counseling services are available.
